MidPoint Music Festival tickets now on sale online and in store Buy online or discover full-access vouchers at retail locations around Cincinnati and beyond

CINCINNATI, Ohio (July 2, 2010) – Can you hear it? As the list of bands expands, the cry of fans wanting tickets grows louder. MidPoint Music Festival fans can now purchase full-access tickets online for the three-day event happening September 23-25. People wanting to buy in-person can also find select retailers selling 3-day passes, or purchase one of the remaining early-bird tickets discounted at PNC's MidPoint Indie Summer.

Online tickets, found at mpmf.com for only $39, provide access to all the festival offers, including three days with hundreds of acts. Plus, only three-day pass holders will be allowed entry to the brag-worthy Secret Show.

Tickets will also be available next week at select retail outlets, sans the online service charge. Cincinnati locations: Coffee Emporium; Contemporary Arts Center; Everybody's Records; Grammer's Bar; Mole's Record Exchange; Neon's Unplugged; Park and Vine; Phil's Music and Memories; and Shake It Records. Louisville: Ear X-tacy. Lexington: CD Central. Dayton: Omega Music. Indianapolis: Luna Music.

Early bird discounted tickets are still available at PNC's MidPoint Indie Summer...but not for long

Anyone attending this summer's free open-air concerts can pick up discounted festival tickets in-person for $29. People should act soon, as discounts on these all-access passes will end after the Friday, August 6 concert.
